KIDNAPED OHIO BOY, GIRL ARE RESCUED TODAY

Abductors Of DeJute Lad Captured; Girl Eludes Kidnapers

Youngstown, O., March 5—(AP)—James DeJute, Jr., 12-year-old son of a Niles contractor, kidnapped from near his home Wednesday morning, was returned safely to his parents shortly before noon today after officers had found him in a secret tunnel at an alleged gambling resort near Youngstown.

The boy was recovered by a party of officers headed by W. J. Harrison, Mahoning county detective, who acted on a tip he had received. The posse stormed the place and found the ad being held by two men.

The men were booked at the county jail in Warren as John De Marco, 39, and Dorell Hargraves, 27, both of Youngstown.

Police said they admitted the kidnapping and said they had led the boy directly to the place where he was found, which had been unoccupied for several weeks.

House Back from Road.

The house where the boy was found is located well back from the Hubbard-Youngstown road, behind a barbecue and filling station. It is the same place where Josephine Devine of Niles was held captive for several days eight months ago, when she was abducted from her place in Niles, known as "The Red House," police said.

The place was raided by Harrison, Sheriff J. C. Risher of Trumbull county, Chief B. J. Gillen of Warren, Chief Charles Nicholas of Niles, T. B. McConnell, A. U. S. Department of Justice man, and County Deputies Lawrence O'Rourke and Jack Jack Lundy.

Harrison declined to name the man who tipped him in a telephone call by saying: "Go to Scott's place and you will find that DeJute kid from Niles."

The Mahoning county officers met the Trumbull and federal men at Vienna. They surrounded the house, and kicked in the door. They rushed into a room bare of all furniture, but there were rugs on the floor and a fire burning in the kitchen stove. Apparently there was not a soul in the house. A mattress and two pillows were on the floor of the living room. A rifle and a pistol, with partly eaten loaf of bread, were found in a corner.

Found School Book.

Then Detective Harrison spied a book on the floor. It was an arithmetic text book. Turning back the cover the detective saw writing on the fly-leaf: "James DeJute, 337 Robins Ave., Niles, Ohio, Grade 5-A, Lincoln School."

Silence fell over the group for a moment.

"Jimmie," cried one of the officers. "Yes sir, yes sir," came the response. "He's I am." The officers quickly found that one of the walls of the four feet thick Harrison and Risher kicked into it. Their shoes crashed through a flimsy structure which was revealed as a false wall.

Within a few minutes the thin partition was ripped away. There stood 12-year-old Jimmie, white and shivering, between two young men, one of whom held a revolver.

Jimmie recognized Deputy Sheriff Lundy, and rushed in to the officers' arms.

"Take me home please," he said, "to my father and mother." He was trembling, but said he was not afraid. He explained that he was glad, then burst into tears.

The abductors, sullen and with arrogant bearing, were handcuffed by the officers.

The distracted parents of the boy did not know of the recovery until Sheriff Risher's car drove up in front of the DeJute home, bringing the lad back.

GIRL ELUSES CAPTOR

Columbus, O., Mar. 5—(AP)—Ten-year-old Martha Ford, who disappeared from school here at noon Friday, eluded a man who had kidnapped her and held her for 24 hours, police reported today. The child, suffering from the effects of an attempted attack, was found on the west side shortly before noon.

The child told police she was lured from the school yard by a man, and held by him for 24 hours. She could give no details, and police removed her to a hospital. She was suffering from exposure.

Miss Elizabeth Moe recognized the child from descriptions broadcast by radio and the newspapers. She met Martha on the sidewalk in front of her home. The child was in a dazed condition, and Miss Moe took her into the house and summoned police.

Doctors said that, while the child

JAPS CONTINUING FIGHT IN CHINA, DESPITE CLAIMS

Gunfire Heard North Of Shanghai: Planes Soar Overhead

Shanghai, March 5—(AP)—Approximately 10,000 additional Japanese troops were landed in the Shanghai area today and the crackle of machine guns and occasional crashes of heavy artillery fire still resounded over the countryside between Kiangwan and the banks of the Yangtze.

Army units totalling 8,000 men were landed at Luho on the southern bank of the Yangtze and 2,000 more were put ashore at Woosung. It was understood that bluejackets who have been on duty in those areas were returning to their ships.

Japanese military and naval authorities continued to maintain that there has been no serious fighting since the Japanese advance was halted two days ago, but a trip through the Kiangwan and Woosung area today supported Chinese claims that there has been considerable skirmishing along the northwest sector.

Gunfire was heard frequently and a squadron of Japanese planes roared overhead in the direction of the Yangtze.

A report from the headquarters of the Chinese 19th Route Army to the Foreign Office said large forces of Japanese troops were vigorously attacking Nanziang, about thirty miles west of Shanghai.

TOKYO STATEMENT

Tokyo, March 5—(AP)—Japanese officials expressed worry today over what they looked upon as indications that the United States is reluctant to join a round table conference at Shanghai to discuss a permanent solution of the situation there.

Washington's attitude, they said, apparently was based on two impressions which seemed to be widespread in Europe and America and which the Japanese government insists are false.

These are, first, that a definite Sino-Japanese armistice agreement was reached aboard the British cruiser Kent at Shanghai, February 28, and second, that Japan, in accepting the proposals of Joseph

RUM RUNNER LOOSED GAS ATTACK IN FUTILE ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE CAPTURE BY COAST GUARD CREW

Woods Hole, Mass., Mar. 5—(UP)—A skirmish between Coast Guards armed with machine guns and alleged rum smugglers who loosed some form of gas attack, ended early today in the capture of the Boston speedboat Kelbie near Warren Point, R. I.

Chief Boatwain Mate, Cecil A. McLeod and his crew aboard the speedy CG-813 captured the 63-foot, 32-ton motorboat valued with its cargo at possibly $100,000, after an exciting chase.

McLeod reported that during the pursuit the alleged rum runner zig-zagged along a crazy course at high speed as the 813's machine gun fire raked its stern and one side. He charged that the Kelbie crew of six, armed with some form of gas attack, new in his experience as a rum chaser, the gas did not take form of a smoke screen occasionally used by smugglers in New England waters, according to McLeod.

It was after the Kelbie had ignored three flares set up by the Coast Guard that the 813 began pursuit. None of the Kelbie's crew was injured by the machine gun fire.

COLD WAVE AND SNOW END HOPE OF EARLY SPRING

Entire Midwest Under Spell Of Belated Winter Storm

Another stroke of winter in a mild form hovered over Dixon and vicinity today, considerably hampering the work of restoration of wire service. A wet snow followed by a cold wind started falling early this morning and streets and highways were ice covered. The slippery condition of the streets in the city necessitated the shutting off the traffic lights and Supt. of Streets Ura Kime was sprinkling the dangerous intersections with sand to prevent accidents.

State Highway department forces which were increased Wednesday to remove fallen trees and limbs, discontinued their work for a time today to pay attention to the highways where the snow was drifting and sprinkling cinders on dangerous curves and grades.

BULLETIN

Chicago, Mar. 5—(AP)—The storm that has been sweeping eastward across the country struck Chicago this morning. The temperature dropped 16 degrees in four hours and the rain turned to a fairly heavy snow. It was 23 above zero at 11 o'clock and the forecast was for as low as 5 degrees tonight.

The government Weather Bureau expected the storm to continue its steady march to the east. The first wave of it was due to cover Indiana and Illinois today, Ohio tomorrow and reach Pennsylvania by tomorrow night.

Kansas City, Mar. 5—(AP)—A cold wave swept over the midwest today, threatening budding fruit trees, sending grass-hoppers back to fence rows and calling for another shot of anti-freeze solution in motor car radiators.

Several persons were injured slightly in a hail, rain and wind storm at San Antonio, Tex., last night. Collapse of a wrestling arena tent over a crowd of 3,500 resulted in a near panic.

Snowing weather gave way from the Canadian line to the Rio Grande. Temperatures fell. The mercury touched zero in western Nebraska.

SPRING SIDETRACKED

Springfield, Ill., March 5—(UP)—One of the heaviest snowfalls of the season covered central Illinois today and temporarily sidetracked thought of an early spring. The snow began falling early today following a sudden drop in temperature.

A forecast issued by the local office of the United States Weather Bureau predicted more snow and much colder for the remainder of the day.

Traffic was not hampered by the snow, according to reports, but the state Highway Department announced it had ordered snow fighting equipment out in several parts of this section of the state to keep the highways clear.

Home Lumber Office Robbed Last Night

Night Merchant Police Officer Peter Kelly on his round of the business district this morning at 3 o'clock, discovered the door of the Home Lumber Company office unlocked. Upon investigation it was found that the safe had been tampered with and a few dollars in change taken.

The intruder is believed to have had a key to the door of the office entering from First street, and apparently was well acquainted with the surroundings. A key had been taken from the office to unlock a padlock through which he left.

The combination on the safe door was not locked and the intruder emptied the contents of the cash box, which amounted to a few dollars and left without further ransacking the desks or offices.

BEST BRAINS OF EASTERN POLICE STUDY KIDNAPING

Meet At Invitation Of the New Jersey Governor For Conference

Trenton, N. J., March 5—(UP)—The one hope kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., have of "successful flight," is to return the child immediately to its grieving parents, Governor A. Harry Moore announced today.

The announcement was made after a conference with leading police authorities of eastern and mid-western United States and was a warning to kidnapers of the infant that every element of the law was coordinated to bring about their capture.

Moore emphasized that destruction of the child "would enormously increase their guilt, their danger and their certain ultimate retribution to the law and avenging justice."

"It is our belief and hope," the statement said, "that they (the kidnapers) will immediately deposit the child in some safe place and by prompt notice to the police or Colonel Lindbergh personally enable it to be returned in safety to its parents."

The Governor's statement said: "It is the general opinion of those who have given the fullest consideration to the known facts in the kidnapping crime that it has been committed by amateurs and not by professional criminals. It bears none of the earmarks of those practiced in crime even though the result has been successfully achieved."

"Police of every state in the union and the long arm of the Federal government are united in the search for the criminals and the restoration of the child to its parents. It is our belief that with this knowledge the kidnapers will soon recognize that their only hope for successful flight and safety lies in their giving up the child by some method that will assure its safe and uninjured return. So long as they retain the child they are in constant danger. Its destruction would enormously increase their guilt, their danger, and their certain ultimate retribution to the law and avenging justice."

RICH JAPANESE BANKER KILLED BY YOUTH TODAY

Director Of Fortune Is Target Of Assassin's Bullet

Tokyo, March 5—(AP)—Baron Takuma Dan, managing director of the House of Mitsui which controls one of the world's greatest fortunes and is Japan's leading commercial organization, was shot and killed today in the heart of Tokyo's financial district.

The assassin was immediately arrested. He was Goro Hishinuma, 21, a farm boy from the Ibaraki prefecture, a rural district north of Tokyo from whence also came the slayer of Junnosuke Itonye, former Minister of finance, who was shot last month.

Baron Dan was shot as he alighted from an automobile in front of the magnificent Mitsui bank building at 11:40 A. M. The youth fired one shot from a revolver which struck the Baron in the right breast. He was carried to a medical room inside the building and died 40 minutes later. His wife and son were with him when he died.

Police who questioned the young assassin said his mind apparently had been inflamed by recent attacks upon Baron Dan in connection with large purchases of American dollars by the Mitsui interests, just before Japan went off the gold standard in December. Ultra-patriotic organizations made much of the incident, claiming it was detrimental to the welfare of the country.

Stolen Articles Found On Island

Cars parked in the vicinity of the Brinton Memorial Masonic Temple last night were ransacked and several articles taken, it was reported today. This has happened several times during the past few months and considerable property has been taken. A few weeks ago a valuable smoking stand was taken from the club rooms at the Temple and this was recovered in one of the shacks on the island.

Sheriff Fred Richardson conducted a search on the island this morning but none of the articles taken in last night's raid of parked cars was found. Several lanterns and a kerosene torch, said to be the property of the Dixon Water Company were found in one of the shacks.

A few weeks ago the hotel at the Assembly Park was broken into and several rugs were taken, a report having been made to the Sheriff's office. Last fall several articles which had been taken from buildings in the Assembly park were found in a shack on one of the islands.

Mr. Hoover believes the government's next big job is to soothe the nerves of frightened bankers. He accepts without reservation the public charge of Senator Glass, Dem. Va., that the bankers are the worst hoarders of all.

That accusation is predicated as a fact that while many banks were failing in the past two years, the majority of them have been liquid in the fullest sense of the word. They have called loans and refused to make new ones in order to accumulate cash reserves against the possibility of runs.

Many Panic-Stricken?

White House secretaries are deluged with letters from merchants throughout the United States complaining that bankers are refusing to extend credit regardless of how good the collateral may be. Many

BOY, KIDNAPED FROM MOTHER ELEVEN YEARS AGO, WILL BE RESTORED TO HER TOMORROW

Milwaukee, Mar. 5—(UP)—A 15-year-old boy who was kidnapped in 1926 will be restored to his mother here tomorrow.

The reunion was made possible through the action of Judge Chas. L. Aaron, who awarded custody of William Felok to his mother, Anna, Joliet, Ill.

The decision ended a tireless search which Mrs. Felok had conducted since the day more than 11 years ago when her husband, Anthony, took William away.

Testimony showed the boy had been beaten and otherwise mistreated by his father. Eight of the years were spent in St. Joseph's orphan asylum, here.

William was partly responsible for ending his mother's search. His father had told authorities Mrs. Felok was dead.

"She is not," William declared. "I used to live with her in Joliet."

Probation officers located the mother and helped her establish her claim for the boy.

Story Told By Sailor Doesn't Tally With Some Of Facts

BULLETIN

Hopewell, N. J., March 5—(UP)—A big automobile emerged from the Lindbergh estate this afternoon, turned into the main highway and dashed away in the direction of Princeton at 70 miles an hour.

Fifteen men were in the car, two on the front seat and three in the rear. The man in the center of the rear seat shielded his face from reporters as the car swung into the road.

BULLETIN

New York, March 5—(AP)—The Evening Post today said that one of its reporters had discovered an abundance of ladders of similar wood and construction as that used by the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

The reporter saw the ladders in the Consolidated Shipyards at Morris Heights, the Bronx, where, the paper said, the yacht of Thomas M. Lamont, on which Henry (Red) Johnson was formerly employed as a sailor, has been laid up for repairs.

Johnson is held for questioning by police of Hartford, Conn.

The ladders, according to the reporter, had square rungs mortised into square uprights. They were of various lengths. In the yards they are used for painting boats in dry-dock.

Hopewell, N. J., March 5—(UP)—Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., still was missing at noon today, and his sorely tried parents and police groped in vain for a word or a clue that would solve the mystery of his kidnapping.

There were no clues that promised the key to solution.

Hundreds, even thousands, of tips have been run down in the heart-breaking 86 hours since the child was seized from his crib in the Lindbergh home on Sourland Mountain.

Yet today the anguished parents still could only hope for an answer to their prayer that the kidnapers would surrender the child, take the $50,000 ransom, and escape prosecution by the Lindberghs.

Police work meantime centered in Hartford, Conn., where Henry (Red) Johnson, the sailor-suit of the Lindbergh's nursemaid, Betty Gow, was under police examination as to his whereabouts on the kidnapping night.

Stories Don't Tally

The story he was understood to have told did not entirely tally with word from the home of Mrs. W. T. Sherman, where Johnson resided.

Johnson had talked with the comely Scotch maid about 8 o'clock—two hours before she went to the baby's room and found the crib empty.

According to the Hartford version Johnson said he left home about an hour after the call and drove to his brother's home in West Hartford, arriving early in the morning.

The Englewood home came word that he stayed home Tuesday night and drove off Wednesday morning arriving in the afternoon at West Hartford. The Hartford authorities said he had arrived in the afternoon. At his rooming house they said he was "all right," and merely the victim of the coincidence that he knew a member of the Lindbergh household.

Police Aces Assemble

Meantime in Trenton, police "aces" from many cities assembled with Governor Harry Moore to consider the case and Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney of New York suggested a powerful organization of ministers or lawyers to act as intermediaries with the kidnapers. The calling of the conference at a time when Lindbergh was striving to get the abductors to "come clean" without fear of prosecution from him, brought criticism in an editorial of the influential Newark Evening News today.

Meantime at Hopewell, the Lindberghs began to show the ravages of suspense. Lindbergh's eyes showed plainly that efforts at self-control were difficult.

His telephone line has been opened, free of police surveillance, and he waits agonized, for some word from the kidnapers that they will give back his child. Mrs. Lindbergh, normally a woman of unusual poise is becoming tenser as the hours pass with no word.

The Lindberghs have the $50,000 ransom in cash ready at Newark to pay over. They have given their word of honor that any negotiations will be secret and confidential. They will not turn the police on the kid-

About seventeen years ago, upon making application for more Life Insurance I found that I had Diabetes. I was put on a very strict diet and lost about seventy pounds in weight the first six months. I seemingly got worse all the time and about seven years ago it was said that I could live but a few months.

About this time I heard of Crazy-Crystals and started using them. I began to see improvements in my condition within the first ten days.

I have taken Crazy-Crystals regularly; have found that they have increased my tolerance in eating and I am practically sugar-free. I am feeling better now than I have felt in years, holding on to my strength and weight.

I would advise anyone suffering as I did to use Crazy-Crystals, and will add that you may use my name as reference, as I cannot too highly recommend Crazy-Crystals.

THEIR APPEAL

nappers' track.
All they want is their baby.

Hours Like Nightmore.
The hours since the kidnapping are like a nightmare.

It was 10 o'clock Tuesday night when Miss Gow went to the nursery to look after her charge, who had been suffering from a cold. Mrs. Lindbergh had kissed the child good night before 8 P. M., at which time Lindbergh came home.

He had an appointment for dinner in town, but through a confusion in dates had failed to keep it.

The Lindberghs, usually only week-ends at their Sourland Mountain place, had extended their stay. Did the kidnappers know this, and how did they obtain the information?

When Miss Gow gave the alarm, the police were asked to go to the Lindbergh house, and some time was lost because they were not told on the telephone that they were wanted in a kidnapping case.

That night and the next day, police searched for cars. They had tips of strangers asking their way to the Lindbergh home. Tuesday evening, and they found an abandoned car near Hillside, N. J., which was thought perhaps to be the one the kidnappers used. But that clue, like the hundreds of tips since then, came to naught.

Miss Gow Cleared.
The household was questioned. Miss Gow was cleared of any blame in the case. Old employees and workers on the reconstruction of the Lindbergh home were checked unavailingly. The ladder beneath the baby's window was examined, since it apparently was specially built, in sections for use in this particular "job."

The Lindberghs broadcast appeals to the kidnappers to watch the baby's diet. They added other appeals to come forward and get the child. Linked with the appeals were promises that they would not harm the kidnappers.

During last night, there were mysterious comings and goings at Hopevale. Cars going 70 miles an hour raced the highways. But to no avail.

Rumors of finding of the baby spread throughout the land. Some of the stories were fantastic, and it seemed an almost nationwide hysteria had grown up as a hero-worshipping people waited for good tidings but feared for bad.

Savior Questioned.
Hartford, Conn., Mar. 5.—(AP)—Henry (Red) Johnson, Englewood, N. J., sailor detained last night for questioning in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnapping, was brought before county authorities shortly before noon today for a renewed grilling.

Dozens of questions were put to the sailor by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn and County Detective Edward J. Hickey, who became noted for their prosecution of Gerald W. Chapman, who was hanged for the slaying of a New Britain policeman.

For eight hours after Johnson was brought in the grilling continued without respite. Then a recess was called for a few hours rest, and the questioning resumed.

He was taken into custody last night at the home of his brother here almost simultaneously with discovery of two pieces of mail for the Lindberghs in the Hartford postoffice.

The question of the car believed to have been used by the kidnappers, was found in front of the brother's house. It was a milk bottle.

Johnson, who has known Miss Gow three years, according to his story, denied knowledge of the kidnapping.

Hartford authorities said they were holding him "on the strength of his own story." They were extremely secretive as to the result of their questioning. County Detective Edward J. Hickey—distinguished for his investigation in the case of Gerald Chapman, who was hanged for the slaying of a New Britain policeman—said following Johnson's arrest that he believed he had obtained "a very important clue."

New Jersey officers joined the Connecticut authorities shortly after 4 o'clock this morning.

Known As "Ladies' Man"
The acquaintanceship between Johnson and the attractive Miss Gow began three years ago. Johnson has been described by friends as "a clean-cut, young fellow, 26 years old, and quite a 'ladies' man.'"

Johnson had been employed on the yacht "Renard" of Thomas W. Lamona, partner in the J. P. Morgan & Company banking house, but was laid off January 15 when the craft went into dry dock. He was to return to work March 15.

The last time Johnson saw Miss Gow, police learned, was late last week. He telephoned her Tuesday night—the night the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped—about 9 o'clock, police said. At that time he inquired about the health of the baby, who was ill with a cold.

On Wednesday morning a waitress in an Englewood, N. J., restaurant where Johnson regularly took his meals, told him of the kidnapping and Johnson appeared greatly surprised and expressed disbelief.

"Why I was talking with the baby's nurse at 9 o'clock last night," she quoted him as saying, "and she said the baby was all right."

Miss Gow, a native of Scotland, has been closely questioned by New Jersey police, as have all other employees at the Lindbergh estate in the Sourland hills country. Officers stated yesterday that they were entirely satisfied she had no connection with the affair.

Ordered Locked Up
When the questioning of Johnson was discontinued at 5:30 o'clock this morning, the only announcement was that the dekhband was being locked up on orders of the prosecutor's office. None of those who took part in the questioning would even hint at the nature of the interrogation which lasted throughout the night, nor what results were obtained. It was stated that questioning of Johnson would be resumed at 11 A. M.

Whether Hartford authorities had sought to connect Johnson with the two pieces of mail plaster found in the Hartford postoffice was not divulged. The contents of the letter to Mrs. Lindbergh were not known because postal authorities did not open it.

The postcard, however, was held out and turned over to New Jersey authorities. Besides being identical in its spelling of Lindbergh's name as "Linbergh" with previous messages addressed to the Colonel, the "J" in the "Princeton, N. J." address was reversed, as in the other notes.

WOMAN UNCERTAIN
Englewood, N. J., March 5.—(AP)—Mrs. W. T. Sherman, proprietor of rooming house where Henry (Red) Johnson, hel din Hartford, Conn., for questioning in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnapping, today said Johnson was at her home Tuesday night, but she could not remember whether he was there all evening. The Lindbergh child was kidnapped Tuesday night.

She was equally uncertain regarding a telephone call Johnson is reported to have made Tuesday evening to Miss Betty Gow, nursemaid for the Lindbergh child, at the Lindbergh home in Hopewell.

Mrs. Sherman, a woman of about 65 years, whose hearing is defective, displayed extreme annoyance at being questioned and after answering in sharp, laconic sentences one or two questions, she slammed the door in a reporter's face.

Earlier in the day she had said over the telephone that Johnson had lived at her home for the last six months. She described him as a man of sober habits, who kept pretty much to himself.

American Teacher
Is Beaten By Japs
Shanghai, March 6.—(Sunday)—(UP)—Miss Rose Marlow, American teacher at a Baptist Mission school, was severely beaten yesterday by Japanese reserve troops while inspecting the ruins of her school at Chapel. American Consular officials were informed today.

Miss Marlow, it was learned, was struck about the face and beaten with sticks. It was not learned what provoked the attack.

The teacher, attached to the Shun Tak girls' school, affiliated with the Southern Baptist Mission, has been a resident of the Orient for some time.

Protests were sent to the Japanese authorities by the United States Consulate, which demanded an investigation of the affair.

Miss Marlow was taken from Shanghai to Hongkong today to convalesce from her injuries.

BANKERS MUST BE REASSURED PRES.
HOOVER BELIEVES

of those letters have reached Mr. Hoover's desk. White House opinion is that the bankers are panic-stricken and must be reassured.

The administration is not expecting that vast numbers of persons will buy the 2 per cent "baby bonds" soon to be offered. They merely are the basis upon which Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, will conduct for Mr. Hoover an anti-hoarding campaign.

The interest rate was placed at 2 per cent with the deliberate purpose of making a savings account in a bank more attractive than the bonds.

The bonds are to afford shelter only for the most timid, who fail to regain confidence through enactment of the Glass-Steagall bill to expand federal reserve currency and credit, and the $2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation project.

Hospital Cooperates Scout Health Work

Beginning this Saturday, March 5, classes of instruction in Girl Scout Proficiency Badges will be held for a period of ten weeks. During this period badges dealing with following fields will be studied: First Aid, Home Nurse, Health Winner, Housekeeper, Cook, Landress, Needlewoman, Scriber, Bird Finder, and Garden Flower Finder. In encouraging the Girl Scouts to take advantage of these classes the Local Council feels certain they will aid in helping the members ascertain their vocational interest as well as presenting knowledge which would be difficult to attain without adequate guidance. Therefore, it is with much pride and pleasure that they announce the cooperation of the Dixon Public Hospital in this venture. Miss Decker, superintendent of the Hospital has arranged to present the First Aid and Home Nurse badges to the G. A. R. Scouts under the direction of capable instructors. The citizens of this community should take great pride in an institution which is so willing to devote its valuable time to the training of our future citizens.

Classes in the Health Winner and Housekeeper badges will be held at the Episcopal church. Miss Alice Crandall and Mrs. C. A. Hesters will have charge. Anyone wishing to visit may be assured of a hearty welcome.

E. Hill Leith Gets a "Wahoo"

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Leith received a copy of the Miami, Fla. Herald, bearing the date of Saturday, Feb. 20th, in which was a dispatch from Hollywood, Fla., of interest to the many Dixon friends of E. Hill Leith, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Leith and a member of the Chicago Banking Firm, Halsey, Stuart & Co. Mr. Leith is enjoying a vacation with his wife in Florida. Following is the article:

Hollywood, Fla., Feb. 19.—E. Hill Leith, vice president of Halsey-Stuart Company of Chicago, and a guest at the Hollywood Beach Hotel, caught what is claimed to be the record wahoo of the season, Thursday afternoon in the Gulf Stream in front of the hotel.

The fish was 4 feet, 11 inches in length and weighed 43 1-2 pounds. It is the prize wahoo registered at the Port Lauderdale docks, and it is believed that the entry will win the prize offered by the City of Port Lauderdale.

The wahoo was landed after 40 minutes of hard fighting. When it struck, Mr. Leith was forced to play out 400 feet of line before the fish stopped.

A. J. Puhl, sales manager of Halsey-Stuart, accompanied Mr. Leith on his expedition. They used Capt. Rubin Monte's boat, Edyth, of Fort Lauderdale.

Picnic at Beautiful Griffith Park, Calif.

Members of the Eatinger families who are spending the winter in California formed a reunion Sunday, Feb. 28th, and motored to beautiful Griffith Park in Hollywood where all enjoyed the picnic dinner. After dinner W. A. Eatinger thanked the ladies and said they were all good cooks, and said if this was a sign of depression he hoped it would last.

After dinner a picture of the happy crowd was taken. Then all enjoyed themselves in their own way—some playing bridge, some visiting the zoo, while others strolled about the beautiful park or climbed the mountains until late afternoon when all motored to the home of Mrs. Grace Cooper in Hollywood where they all enjoyed a delightful supper and then spent the evening playing bridge and having a good time till they left for their homes, after having spent a wonderful day.

They were a happy crowd and all had a wonderful time. (Note: Mrs. W. A. Eatinger, who is enjoying a stay in the west with her husband, sent the information for the above article and states that "we will be seeing the old home town soon.")

Women's Clubhouses Serve Great Need

There are now more than 1100 women's clubhouses in the United States, according to a report compiled by The American Woman's Association, which adds that "they are valued at $80,000,000, and serve a membership of 1,000,000 women and numerous guests."

Practically every city and town now has its woman's club-house, or plans one, according to the A. W. A. The architecture is usually in keeping with the traditions of the section and the woman take great pride in making the building a community asset.

"California with 325 clubhouses, leads the states in number of club buildings; New York in property valuation, amounting to $27,000,000, continues the A. W. A. report.

"The total housing facilities of these 1100 clubs is considerable. They vary according to needs of member, and locality. Buildings in large cities or on the route of tourist travel logically have call for living accommodations."

In Hollywood, the Studio club has a constant demand among moving picture women for its 67 bedrooms, while in San Francisco's large Woman's Club, scarcely one of the 130 bedrooms which is offered to members and guests is ever empty. The meals served in the clubs throughout the country annually run into hundreds of thousands of dollars in cost.

The American Woman's Association Club House in New York is the largest of the women's club buildings. Because it is the center of the activities of The American Woman's Association with 4000 members and because of the demand in New York for housing accommodations for women both transient and permanent, 1250 bedrooms each with private bath were installed for members and non-members.

Grisdale-Griswold Wed March First

Of much interest to Dixon friends is the announcement of the marriage of Richard Orvis Griswold on Friday, March first, in New York City, to Miss Marjorie B. Griswold.

They will be at home at 1060 Park Avenue, New York City.

Mr. Grisdale is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grisdale of Minneapolis, a great grandson of the late Judge John V. Eustace of Dixon, and a nephew of Mrs. Harold Fuller of North Dixon. ## Enjoy Ideal Club's Annual Guest Night

The annual guest night party of the Ideal Club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Goeke, Wednesday evening, March 2nd. The home was beautifully decorated with red, white and blue carnations, candles and antiquated lamps. A replica of Mount Vernon, made by Lloyd Lewis was on display and caused much favorable comment.

After the serving of a delicious three course dinner at small tables guessing games were played; Mrs. Robert Fulton winning first prize at the game of "George Washington," whose birthday the club celebrated. Miss Dorothy Goeke rendered two very pretty selections on the violin. Harold Goeke then favored with two trumpet solos, both being accompan-

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton
GIVEN BY NEA SERVICE INC.

"Mother, why is my book red?"

"I don't know, dear. I suppose it is because the man who made it thought it looked nice."

"But Nancy's book is blue."

"Well, I guess they thought blue was a good color for girls, maybe."

"Her other book Aunt Laura gave her was yellow and it had a red picture on the back."

"That's so!" Jimmy's mother being in a more explanatory mood than usual thought a minute.

"When they make books, there have to be ever so many to go around. If all the books were one color children would get tired of them. And if all books were one color, all one color, red, or blue, or green, or brown people wouldn't want to go in to buy them. It wouldn't be interesting. That's two reasons why they are made different colors."

More Questions

"Mother, feeling very self-righteous in her patience, went out to the kitchen to start lunch—whence Jimmy followed her."

"Mother, why is my tie red?"

"I liked it so I bought it."

"But why is it red?"

"It was dyed red," said Mother shortly.

"What's dye?"

"Color."

"What made that red?"

"Why it's just red—that's all. If you drop Dad's red ink on paper doesn't it get red?"

"What makes the ink red?"

"Mother didn't answer this one."

"What makes my cars red and chalk red and flowers red and jelly red?"

"Goodness, Jimmy! I don't know. You ask the silliest questions."

"Red isn't silly, Mom. I mean it—yes, sir, I mean it." Jimmy blew his breath on the window and made a circle.

"Mom, Mrs. McDonald had red curtains. Did they get dyed?"

"Yes."

"She's like me, she likes that color, yes sir. I wish everything was red. I wish the sky was red this minutes."

Thwarted Curiosity

His mother was setting the table and forgot all about Jimmy and his temporary color obsession.

But he shouted after her presently, "Say, Mom, when the sky's red, that ain't dye. What makes the sky red?"

"God makes the sky!" she yelled back. "Now let me alone."

Something was in Jimmy's mind that day. He was trying to ask a question he didn't know how to put, so he feigned intense interest in one color.

He was just as likely next day to say he liked blue or green or pink.

He was after the secret of color.

The real explanation of the spectrum and the prism and refracted rays was over his head, but enough could have been told him to satisfy his curiosity. The story of dyes alone is interesting.

Surface explanations to get rid of children's persistent curiosity is not sufficient. They are very smart and capable of greater understanding than we imagine. Young years are the time for a veritable mine of general education, if parents only would summon patience and time and look up facts to tell them. Later they lose this keen curiosity to discover information.

CONCERT SCHUBERT STRING QUARTETTE MARCH 11TH—

There will be a concert by the Schubert String Quartette at the Methodist church at 8 o'clock Friday evening, March 11th.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Strock, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Buzard and Miss Helen Melms. A most delightful evening was spent by all listening to the quartette.

At a late hour they departed wishing Mr. Richardson many happy returns of the day and congratulating the Helms on their beautiful new home which they have recently completed.

Victor Eichler Is New Associate Patron

At the stated meeting of Dorothy Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, held in Masonic Temple last evening, Victor Eichler was elected and installed Associate Patron, a new ruling according to Grand Chapter by-laws.

After the regular session, Mrs. Emma Eichler, and Mrs. Pearl Rickard, Past Worthy Matrons of Dorothy Chapter, were escorted and introduced as Installing Matron and Installing Marshall respectively. The Associate Patron, who is also Master of Friendship Lodge, was escorted to his station by four Master Masons.

Mrs. Eichler was very much pleased to have the opportunity of installing her own son, as the first Associate Patron of Dorothy Chapter and in a very few well chosen words expressed her gratitude to the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Sterling Schrock for this privilege.

The balance of the evening was enjoyed with cards. Mrs. Merton Ransom winning high favor for the ladies; E. J. Decker high favor for the gentlemen; Mrs. Judson Devaney and Dr. Kenyon B. Segner winning the consolation favors, after which light refreshments were served.

WHITE DAMASK FOR THE DINNER TABLE

Today's table, like today's costume, is either all light in color, or has a light background with a splash of vivid color. The linen damask table cloth is smartest in white or ivory for all of the more formal occasions. Pale china and crystal are the correct complements to the formal dinner. The informal dinner or luncheon may be laid with an ivory damask cloth, deep red glasses, and a few American Beauty roses. It is only for the intimate luncheon or breakfast party that the deeper colored damasks are used. Then it is attractive to use china and glass that form a striking color contrast, such as green on yellow or yellow on dark blue. But for dinner the beauty of pure white damask lends more dignity to your table, as well as providing a satisfactory background to subtly-shaded evening dresses.

Happy Afternoon For Elks' Ladies

The Elks Ladies Club met for a happy afternoon at bridge Friday at the Elks Club where there were guests for nine tables. On counting scores Mrs. C. H. ## Girl Scout News Notes of the Week

Monday:
Brownie Pack of the north side held a review of the Brownie ceremony during the first part of the meeting. The rest of the hour was devoted to out of door games. The Pack is proud to add two new members, Julia Joan Smith and Patricia Weiss. Alice Countryman of Troop IV was a welcome visitor.

Troop V met at the home of their captain, Miss Dorothy Prescott, where they held a short business meeting. The troop, then, hiked to Assembly Park where games were played and plans made for an out-of-door meeting next week. The hike will start from the home of Mrs. Lyle Prescott at 515 E. Fellows St. It will include a weenie roast, so be sure to attend.

The High School troop held their weekly meeting at the home of Miss Dorothy Schmidt. The discussion and study of first aid was the objective of the meeting. During the social hour that followed marshmallows were toasted and Scout songs were sung. The next meeting will be a scramble supper at the home of Miss Dorothy Hoyle. The menu is being planned by Misses Betty Lazier and Esther Richardson.

Tuesday:
Troop IV received instructions for tests in Scout requirements to be given at the next meeting. The troop was pleasantly surprised with delicious refreshments which were sent to the group by Mrs. B. A. Clinker in honor of her daughter, Courtney's birthday.

Thursday:
Brownie Pack of the South Side held a most successful meeting. The Pack was enthralled by the story of the struggle by which a Brownie gained the Golden Ground, thus receiving the Golden Bar. The needle threading contest was very popular, but in spite of the endeavors of the Pack the honors of the day went to their visitor, Alice Hintz. The construction of spool dolls was begun and they show great promise. The hour was concluded with practise in marching in formation.

Troop VI began their meeting with a talk by the local director on ways to enlarge the troop enrollment. Instruction in the Morse Code was then given by Miss Dorothy Dodd.

Troop I continued their instruction in the laying of a trail. The trail layers led the followers on an excursion covering much of the south side. Upon returning to the meeting place the local director spoke on arrangements for badge classes. The members were encouraged to bring in new members in order to help their patrol win the contest now in progress.

THE JAPANESE ARMY.

The Japanese army in China seems to be very much like any other army, offhand. Its organization is about the same, its arms are the same, and it follows the same kind of strategy and tactics that European and American armies use.

But once in a while a little news dispatch will reveal the Japanese soldier as a creature of a different species; a hold-over, as it were, from a warlike age which seems to survive nowhere else on earth.

A few days ago dispatches from Shanghai said that the Japanese commander there found himself without sufficient troops to make his offensive succeed. Any European or American general in that position would have cabled at once for more men, and would have kept on cabling until he got action.

But the Japanese commander never let out a peep. Why? Because the old code of the Samurai forbade him to. His emperor had given him this assignment, and he would be unworthy if, having begun it, he appealed for help.

A day or so after that bit of news came a cable to the New York Times telling how three Japanese infantrymen had sacrificed themselves to destroy a barbed-wire barrier that was holding up their battalion.

They strapped about their chests and waists huge quantities of high explosives, and then ran forward boldly and entangled themselves in the barbed wire. The Chinese instantly shot them, the bullets touched off the explosives, and the wire entanglements were blown to bits—as, of course, were the three Japanese infantrymen.

These soldiers, by the way, had volunteered for that job. It is hard to imagine either of these incidents happening in a present-day European or American army. We on this side of the Pacific simply don't think that way any longer. The attitude that makes such a quixotic bits of old-time chivalry possible stems from the middle ages. We have gone beyond it.

But Japan is still half medieval. The old warrior caste there still looks in life as it did ten centuries ago. The present war, indeed, may prove its last fight; but while it lasts a code that the rest of us lost long ago is still operating.

DON'T STEP BACKWARD.

President Hoover is entirely correct in speaking out vigorously to urge that appropriations for public schools be maintained as close to their present levels as possible in spite of the depression.

"However, the national economy may vary or whatever fiscal adjustments may need be made," he remarked, "the very first obligation upon the national resources is support of the public schools. We cannot afford to lose any ground in education. That is neither economy nor good government."

Of course, where school systems are conducted extravagantly and inefficiently, the pruning knife can be used to good advantage. But that is not often the case; and when we consider slashing the school budgets we ought to bear in mind the president's warning—that it is "neither economy nor good government" to cut into those expenditures.

SMALL BONDS NEEDED.

One of the most interesting suggestions made in connection with the anti-hoarding campaign is the proposal that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation offer a good block of its $1,500,000,000 debentures in denominations small enough to attract the general public.

It is foolish to assail the practice of hoarding cash without realizing that it reflects a very widespread and deeply-rooted public distrust of many of the available mediums of investment. The best way to pull hoarded money back into circulation is to offer an investment about whose perfect safety there can be no possible argument.

Small-size bonds by the Corporation would provide such an investment; and it is easy to believe that, if they were made available, a perfect flood of hoarded money would come out to take advantage of the situation.

We have had no co-operation in the true sense of the word. Such measures as the Glass-Steagall credit bill, which had its foundation in legislation frequently sought by the Democrats and as frequently vetoed by the then Republican majorities, are claimed as triumphs for the administration.—John N. Garner, Speaker of the House.

I cannot tell you how highly I value the friendship and esteem the honor which the state of Massachusetts seeks to do me.—Alfred E. Smith, Candidate for the Democratic Nomination for President.

I take this step (presidential candidacy) only out of consideration of a profound sense of duty to the great middle class and the little man.—Governor "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma.

AMERICA'S VICIOUS KIDNAP RACKET

—FIRST OF A SERIES OF THREE STORIES FOR RELEASE ON RECEIPT

How the Ring Spreads Over The Entire Country — Operating Like Big Business

By BRUCE CATTON
 NEA Service Writer

Organized crime in America has today turned kidnaping into one of the underworld's most profitable rackets.

Thereby, it has added a frightening new element to the progressive breakdown of law enforcement agencies throughout the country.

The shock that jarred the entire nation when the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped has served to focus attention on the fact that there are kidnaping rings today, and that the law-abiding citizen has very little defense against them.

The modern kidnaper is just as much a specialist in his line as are the underworld booze runners, "choppers," gambling kings and so on. And the kidnaper has now arrived at the point where he no longer hesitates about going outside of the underworld for his victims.

Originally, kidnaping was strictly a between-us-gangsters racket except, of course, for sporadic cases in which one or two men operated alone.

Gambling, booze and vice rackets in the big cities grouped together large numbers of paid gunmen—professional "hard guys," who were seldom bothered by the police and who were constantly ready for absolutely any crime on the calendar.

It occurred to these men, here and there, after a time, that the very underworld figures who were hiring them were shining targets for kidnapers.

These men could be trusted never to squawk to the police. Besides, most of them are arrant cowards, and it seemed a safe bet that if they were abducted they would pay well for their freedom.

CHOPPERS.
 So the "choppers"—the professional murderers—began to give it a trial. In one city after another, little groups of half a dozen or more took to preying on the shadowy and wealthy big shots of gangland.

A big-time gambler would be taken captive and held until he could get his family or his associates to cough up anywhere from $10,000 to $25,000. A head of a vice syndicate would be the victim in one city; in another, a race track luminary; in another, a liquor distributor.

From city to city the racket spread. It worked like a charm. Almost without exception the kidnapers collected with a minimum of trouble. In most cases the police never even found out what was happening.

Then began the development which ought to relieve the ordinary citizen forever of his comfortable belief that gang wars don't really matter because the gangsters only shoot each other.

EXPANSION.
 Emboldened by their success, the kidnaping rings started to reach out for law-abiding citizens—men of money and position and of absolute integrity.

In New York last summer Charles M. Rosenthal, wealthy broker, was kidnaped and held prisoner for 18 days, until $50,000 had been paid for his release. As it happened, the police got the four men who had seized him, and all four are now in Sing Sing prison serving 60-year sentences.

Max Price, a rich real estate man in New Haven, Conn., was kidnaped last spring and held until $25,000 ransom had been paid. His captors could not be found.

In the west even more cases of this kind are on record. Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy Kansas City woman, was kidnaped a few months ago and held for $50,000 ransom. She was later returned to her home, it has not been made public whether or not the money was paid.

Dr. Isaac D. Kelly of St. Louis was kidnaped last year and held for $150,000 ransom. He, too, was released after an undisclosed sum had been paid.

Michael H. Katz, wealthy Kansas City business man, was another of the kidnapers' victims a year ago. His freedom cost him $100,000.

Those are just a few citations from the record of the last year or two. They could be duplicated and reduplicated. From New York to Denver, well-to-do people of the highest standing have been seized by gang kidnapers in this newest and most dangerous of all the underworld's activities.

NEW YORK.
 There are today highly organized kidnaping gangs in at least half a dozen large American cities. These gangs have working agreements with one another. A man kidnaped in Detroit, for example, can be sent to St. Louis and kept in custody by gangsters there; a New York gang can have men come on from Chicago to pull a job on Long Island.

In Chicago, during the last two years, it is believed that fully 400 kidnapings have taken place. Some 300 have taken place in and around New York. In the country as a whole, it is believed that fully 2000 kidnapings have been committed by organized gangs since the beginning of 1930.

New York, oddly enough, has not been as effectively organized by the kidnapers as many middle-western cities have been. The racket here is still largely in the hands of small fry, the police say; one of its most profitable subdivisions, for example, is said to be a crew that specializes in kidnaping the children of East Side Italians and extracting payment from the parents on the installment plan.

TRADES.
 But the New York gangsters are learning. Shortly before he was machine-gunned, the notorious Vincent Coll was reported to have tried to kidnap one of the lieutenants of Ownie Madden, generally credited with being head of New York's biggest liquor ring. It is rumored that it was this exploit which led to Coll's murder.

Coll also is believed to have been responsible for the kidnaping of "Big French" De Mange, one of Dutch Schultz's beer-running mob. De Mange's release cost his gang $35,000.

Legs Diamond, a small-time racketeer who got big-time publicity, is also said to have taken part in kidnaping ventures now and then.

It is because the modern kidnaping racket stems directly out of the whole highly-organized underworld frame work that public officials everywhere are growing so alarmed over it.

WASHINGTON.

In Washington, bills have been introduced by Senator Patterson and Congressman Cochran, of Missouri, to make interstate kidnaping a Federal offense punishable by death or life imprisonment.

Congressman Hattin W. Sumners of Texas, chairman of the House judiciary committee which is considering the Cochran bill, makes the following point in connection with kidnaping cases:

"Passage of any Federal law should not divert public attention from the fact that if communities are going to let gangsters and criminals live in their midst those criminals are going to commit crimes in order to live."

Congressman Sumners believes the death penalty should be provided for kidnaping. Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, chairman of the Senate judiciary committee which is considering the Patterson bill, is not so sure.

"It is probable," he says, "that certainty of the death penalty would cause some kidnapers to kill their victims in order to destroy the witness. But criminals must be adequately punished as a protection to society, and some crimes are so inhuman that proper punishment is hard to conceive."

 Jacksonville, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—James P. O'Brien, who said he was from Hollywood, Calif., reported to the police last night he was robbed of his automobile, $360 in checks, $11 in cash and a gold watch by a hitch-hiker to whom he had given a "lift" on a highway near Carrolltown, Ill. He said the watch was given him by the American Legion Post of Hollywood.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tynmites joined the merry song as their umbrella sailed along. The butcher had a real deep voice and oh, how he could sing. The baker said, "I always mix my words and get into a fix, but don't you Tynmites mind that. Let your voices loudly ring."

Then Scouty said, "I have a plan I'll sing some new words, if I can." "Go right ahead," the others cried. "This ought to be real good. We promise we won't laugh at you. Just do the best that you can do." So Scouty followed their advice. He did the best he could.

"Just seven merry souls are we and we're as happy as can be. We are sailing on the water, though we don't know where we are bound. Perhaps, if we have lots of luck, at no time will our ships get stuck. However, I am hoping that we soon will run aground."

"Say! That was fine," the baker cried. "And now we'll show you how to ride around in funny circles. We can make our tub do that." The men began to paddle fast and their small tub whirled around, at last. "Twas easy because the bottom of the tub was round and flat."

"Let's try the same thing. Paddle, now!" said Coppy. "They have shown us how." But their big, curved umbrella would not whirl around one bit. "I give up," Dunce shortly cried. "We can't control our crazy ride. The big umbrella is so light we cannot manage it."

Just then a swordfish swam up near and Coppy yelled, "Get out of here!" But Mister Swordfish, his another thing he wished to do. He pushed his sword up very slick through the umbrella. Gee, it was slick. Wee Windy shouted, "My, oh my! the water's coming through!"

Mrs. Caraway's wraps usually draws some banter from his colleagues. And persons in the lobby were highly amused the other day, to see a smiling faced lad hurrying from the cloakroom wearing Mrs. Caraway's little black tight fitting hat.

They saw that Senator Fess was just a bit disturbed last week when he was preparing for his appearance on the radio with Walter Winchell on a popular radio program. The Senator had consented to make a speech, it seems, without finding out how much time he was allotted. He prepared an oration after the order of oratory—that is not very short. After it was all ready he was advised that eight minutes had been allotted him. The Senator, so the story goes, protested vehemently. Finally Winchell's time and that of the orchestra with which the Senator shared the program were reduced. The Senator was given 12 minutes. At that, it is claimed, his speech ran overtime.

Washington, March 5.—(UP)—

When Senators are around Senate page boys are all dignity and courtesy. They fairly leap to serve when a Senator snaps his fingers. Attired in blue knickers and coats, hair neatly combed, faces grave, they are the personification of the good little boys of the story books.

They never forget when they are sent for a Senator's hat. And they never are over-rough when they help a statesman into his topcoat.

But when senatorial backs are turned things are just a little different. On Saturday when there is no session, the boys gather in the Senate chamber. Each sits in the seat of his favorite Senator and the halls resound to youthful cratery.

The arrival of Mrs. Hattie Caraway as Senator from Arkansas puzzled the page boys not a little. They had to learn to say "Yes ma'am." They were uncertain as to the etiquette of assisting a lady with her coat and just when to hand her her hat.

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

PREPARED BY THE REV. DWIGHT J. BRADLEY
SPONSORED BY THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF THE
CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA

SATURDAY, MARCH 5
"A Certain Man at Lystra"
(Read Luke 14:1-10.)

This man, a cripple, illustrates the effect of radiant religion upon those who possess it. By his simple faith he stands out in strong contrast on the one hand to the mob that could not see that Light and, on the other, to the crowd that saw it unclearly. Faith is a matter, primarily, of personal experience; and can be quickened to activity, only in the secret places of our spiritual solitude. So it was with that certain man at Lystra. Faith begins as a matter between each self and God through Christ. Not until it has been stirred, and then established in the soul, does it come naturally forth to shine as a beacon before men.

Prayer.
O God, our Father, help us to keep closer to Thee. When we are lured by the fascination of crowds, let Thy spirit hold us fast. When he begins to follow the blind who lead the blind, let Thy Light draw us back into the pathway of Thy Truth. Grant, we pray, that our trust may remain simple and steadfast; so that always and everywhere we may be faithful to the calling to which we have been called, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

SUNDAY, MARCH 6
"Jesus Returned in the Power of Spirit"
(Read Luke 4:14-21.)

Hope depends for its constant renewal upon faith, while faith reaches out through hope towards its own perfection. We can conceive of persistent hope without faith, nor can we conceive of a growing faith without hope. Radiant religion requires both, as primary and essential ingredients. It was after His temptations in the wilderness that Jesus returned and commenced an active ministry, so which faith in His Father, coupled with hope in His Father's kingdom, brought a power that was finally too strong even for physical death. Likewise, it is after our trials and stresses that we are able to act as radiant centers of an unextinguishable Light and an unquenchable optimism. We may well ponder this fact, because there is in the world a shallow belief that optimism is a matter of mere willing or wishing; that one can make himself optimistic just by "making up his mind" to it. Such is not at all the case. Hope that is merely willed is not hope—it is self-delusion. It is artificial and spurious. Real hope, sincere optimism, is possible only after long vigils face to face with despair, when he have looked the specters of doubt straight in the eyes and have downed them. Coming back from such a rendezvous, having stood by while faith was doing battle with its foes, we are prepared to go forth "in the power of the spirit," as Jesus was, preaching the coming kingdom of God.

Prayer.
O God, our Heavenly Father, Thou knowest that our faith is often tried and that hope sometimes fails away. We pray that through Thy Holy Spirit, we may receive sufficient strength to keep us faithful in times of perplexity; that out of confusion may come renewal of confidence, and that from our renewed hope may issue a deeper and a surer faith. In Jesus' name we ask it. Amen.

ASHTON—Gilbert Reed, one of Ashton's two Civil War veterans will celebrate his 90th birthday March 5. Mr. Reed is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Reed and was born in Vigo county, Indiana in 1842. In 1867 he was brought to Ogle county by his parents who settled in Washington Grove. He enlisted with the Union Army at Franklin Grove in August 12, 1862 as a member of the 75 Illinois Infantry Company G. He left Dixon on September 26, 1862, arriving in Louisville, Kentucky, Sept. 28.

On a forced march after General Bragg of the Confederate army the men left Louisville October 1. A battle between the Confederate troops was fought October 1 at Palmyra, Kentucky. Mr. Reed saw service at Stone River, January 1, 1863. Mustered out of service July 20, 1865 he returned home and assisted his father the following day with the wheat harvest, a task which he had left to join the army three years before.

March 5, 1871 he was married to Miss Rhoda Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Clark of Flag Center. To them were born two daughters, Mrs. Andrew Dummmond and Mrs. Edith Worthington. They have three grandchildren, Elmer Hayes of Kings, Evan Dummmond of Milwaukee and Mrs. Vera Patton of Ashton. One great grandchild, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hayes.

Frank Reed of Dixon is a brother of Mr. Reed and there are many other relatives in the community. Mrs. Ameretta Cooley.

Both these estimable pioneer folks of our community enjoy fairly good health. Mr. Reed is often on the streets. The removal of his left eye several years ago impaired his vision but his many friends were astonished at his wonderful vitality in being able to withstand so severe an operation at this age.

The entire community joins in extending best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Reed as they celebrate their first wedding anniversary and Mr. Reed his ninetieth birthday.

CHAPTER OF TRAGEDY ENTERS LINDBERGH'S LIFE AND TURNS LUCKY DAYS INTO SORROW

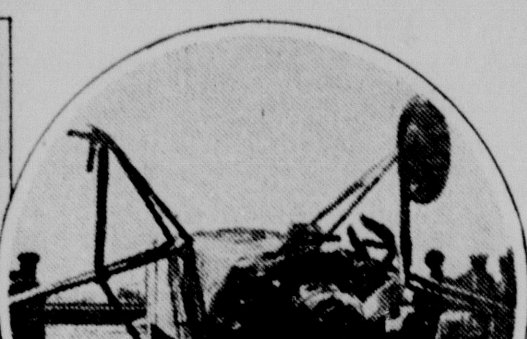

Lindbergh's plane collided with another 10,000 feet in the air and he leaped to safety with his parachute.

Millions acclaimed him. Here he is riding down Broadway.

He became a world hero overnight by flying across the Atlantic.

His Plane Overturned at Mexico City

Chinese flood victims mobbed his plane when he brought them medicine.

They came home sadly by ship after Mrs. Lindbergh's father died.

Baby son kidnaped from home at Hopewell, N. J.

By NEA Service—
"Lucky Lindy," they called him. Four times he cheated death thousands of feet in the air by leaping with his parachute. Once when his plane collided with another 10,000 feet over Kelly Field, Texas. Again when his ship went into a dreaded spin. And twice when his mail planes ran out of gas in heavy fog on the St. Louis-Chicago run. "Lucky—and resourceful," they said when he piloted the glistening Spirit of St. Louis across the stormy Atlantic to Paris, in 1927. Overnight he became a world hero, the idol of youth, worshiped by millions, feted by kings and queens.

Before he was 26 some 30,000,000 persons had cheered him. He was called the "ambassador of good will" and carried that portfolio to more than half the capitals of the world. . . . And then, in 1929, the hands of fate began writing a new chapter—a chapter of tragedy—into the colorful story of Charles A. Lindbergh. He took his bride-to-be, Anne Morrow, for a flight at Mexico City, a few weeks before their marriage. A wheel came off and the plane turned over in landing. Lindbergh's shoulder was dislocated. His fiancée was less seriously hurt.

Then, in the summer of 1931, Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh started on what they expected to be a care-free vacation flight to the Orient. Their plane was forced down in the Pacific and they narrowly escaped death. The plane upset in the Yangtze river hurling both occupants into the water. Lindy flew with medicine to aid the stricken millions in China's flood area and those he sought to aid mobbed the plane because they thought he carried food. The vacation ended abruptly in mourning when the famous flyer and his wife, thousands of miles from home, received news that Mrs. Lindbergh's father, Senator Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey, had died. And now kidnapping of their baby son, Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., has added a new tragedy to their list of sorrows.

HINTS for HOME GARDENERS

By WM. R. BEATTIE
Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

No garden would be complete unless it included one or more kinds of beans.

There are so many kinds and styles of beans that it is easy to find one adapted to almost every locality and condition. String beans, or perhaps we had better call them snap beans, since we now have varieties that do not have strings, are adapted for growing practically everywhere. They are a winter crop in southern Florida, Texas, and California, and elsewhere they can be grown in every frost-free month of the year.

Snap beans can be planted as soon as the weather is reasonably warm—about the time for the last spring frost. It takes 3 to 7 days to come up, so you can afford to take a chance of planting them a little early.

Second, third and even fourth or fifth plantings will keep your table supplied with fresh beans practically all summer. The general rule is to plant bush beans in rows about three feet apart, and the hills 15 to 18 inches apart in the rows. Five seeds should be placed in each hill.

Beans grow best in a moderately rich, well drained soil that promotes rapid growth. Giant Stringless Green Pod, Round Pod Kidney varieties of bush beans for the garden.

Among the pole beans, Kentucky Wonder is one of the best of the green podded sorts. It can be used as green or snap beans, or the beans can be ripened and used as dry beans.

When it comes to lima beans we again have the bush and the pole sorts. The bush limas are divided into two classes, the small or bush lima, and the large type. The bush lima will come into bearing early, and if beans are kept closely picked will go on bearing until killed by frost. In the south a form of this small lima known as Carolina or Sieva bean is extensively grown. Large lima beans do not do well in the south except occasionally as a late fall or early spring crop.

A Garden King.
King of the Garden is one of the best varieties of the large pole lima beans, and this variety will grow to a height of 15 to 20 feet on good ground. If given poles that tall to climb upon. The pole lima beans can also be grown on wire fences.

White kidney beans and navy beans are largely grown for dry beans, but it is doubtful if it will pay the average gardener to grow them. Any of the snap beans or the lima beans can be ripened and the dry beans used during the winter. The main point in handling bush beans is to see that pods do not come in contact with the soil and the beans become discolored or mouldy.

Such children, in addition to being inordinately tired, lack appetite, suffer constipation, and often are dull in their school work.

The child with poor posture is likely to have a flat chest, shoulder blades that stick out, protruding abdomen, sway back, legs that are out of alignment and weak or fallen arches.

If the head is drooped forward, it interferes with breathing through the nose and with the proper occlusion of the teeth.

When the chest is flat, it is usually also narrow, and thus makes the proper expansion of the lungs difficult, if not impossible.

When the abdominal wall is flabby and weak, the abdominal organs tend to become displaced. Their proper function is interfered with, and digestion and elimination suffer.

Improperly held lower extremities make a child appear and move awkwardly. They induce fatigue and tend to limit the child's activities.

The same is true of fallen arches, which, in addition, may sometimes cause a good deal of effort.

The child with poor or bad posture is ill and as much in need of medical attention as when he has diseased tonsils or bronchitis.

His posture should be studied by a competent physician and treatment should be prescribed. Nagging will not help his posture, but may ruin his disposition.

BRITAIN TO HONOR MISSING HEROES WITH GREAT ARCH

Prince Of Wales to Dedicate Last of War Memorials March 16

The great arch shown above stands at Thiepval, France, in the midst of the great battlefield of the Somme, in which countless thousands of British soldiers were slain. The Princes of Wales, inset, will dedicate the memorial March 16.

By MINOTT SAUNDERS NEA Service Writer

Paris — A memorial to 70,000 missing men, the largest and one of the most imposing on the World War battlefields, will be dedicated March 16, by the Prince of Wales on behalf of the English Empire at Thiepval. The men are the Missing of the Somme, where British arms wrote a page in history of gallantry and sacrifice.

The unveiling is to be made a sacred event in the annals of the Franco-British amity and companionship on the field of battle. High French officials of the state and army will cooperate with the British in paying homage to the lost legion.

Troops of both countries will participate in the ceremonies which will solemnly revive the spirit of the Entente Cordiale.

The great granite monument, which in the form of a gigantic arch, stands on the summit of a hill overlooking a plain where over 200,000 British troops lost their lives. It is 160 feet high and its panels are inscribed with 73,367 names.

This is easily the largest list on any battle memorial in France and contains nearly 20,000 more names than are carved on the walls of the famous Meuse Gate at Ypres, another great British monument.

Around the Thiepval memorial are 500 graves containing the remains collected from the neighboring battlefields, but the names on the panels are "those who have no known graves." An inscription on the upper part of the arch says: "The Missing of the Somme."

The opening of the Thiepval memorial, which was designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens, will mark the completion of the British undertaking to dedicate suitable monuments to the sons who fell on the fields of France.

No further construction is planned and the coming ceremony is looked upon with greater significance because it will be the last of its kind. The staff of the Imperial War Graves Committee which, excluding the local labor, numbered at one time 2633 persons, will be reduced to about 500, including gardeners and caretakers, which are all former British service men.

Humble French peasants in the Somme district are planning to rally behind their officials in their earnest desire to pay homage to the saviors of their fields.

DIXON BLOWS UP AND HANDS GAME TO STERLINGITES

Sharpe's Quintet Is Trimmed Decisively In Friday's Game

By Don Hilliker

Completely blowing up in the last three quarters the Dixon high school basketball team lost to Sterling last night 18-3. The Sterling lightweight made it a double success by winning 23-10. Dixon's next game will be on Thursday night at 8:00 P. M. in the Sterling Coliseum when it plays Sterling as a part of the district tournament.

Sterling could not connect during the first period, all their shots missing the circle. Dixon made good on a free throw to do all the scoring in the first quarter. After the short rest Sterling came to life and there was nothing to it after that. Dixon did not score in the second period while Sterling rolled into a 9-1 lead. Again in the third quarter the locals were scoreless with Sterling adding 7 more points. Each team scored two points in the final period.

The game started slow and three minutes elapsed before Henry broke the ice with a free toss. Sterling shots were hoop everything rolling out of the hoop. Dixon also showed a lack of good fortune, particularly on the long shots. The quarter ended with Dixon on top 1-0.

In the second period Sterling clicked. W. Hendricks started it on a nice corner toss. Terhune followed from the same place. The Hendricks boys each added a free throw. Bill Hendricks dribbled in for a set-up and then scored on a free shot. Sterling had a 9-1 lead at the rest period. Weaver started the ball rolling in the third session on an under-the-basket toss. W. Hendricks again hit the net. Terhune made a free toss and W. Hendricks dropped in his fourth basket. The score was 16-1. Dixon finally came out of its non-scoring huddle to score on a long one by Fordham. Terhune ended the scoring on a long leave from the side.

W. Hendricks led the scoring with four baskets and two free throws for ten points. Fordham got two of Dixon's three scores.

The lightweight season was ended in a none too glorious manner. It was the same old story of a good little team versus a better big team. Sterling kept the ball most of the time. Dixon's only baskets coming when the midgets outran their opposition to drop in two short shots. Moore was the heaviest scorer of the game with fifteen points, on five baskets and five free throws. Underwood led Dixon by making five of the ten points.

A bit of joy for local enthusiasts in the way of the cage sport can be derived from the Dixon grade school victory over Rock Falls last night in the Sterling Y. M. C. A. primary grades tournament. Dixon handed Merrill grade school its first defeat of the season by a 24-19 score. The tournament continues this afternoon and tonight with Dixon a strong favorite to top the honors.

TO PRY LID OFF CAGE TOURNEYS DURING THE WEEK

811 High School Basketball Teams Will Stage Contests

Champaign, Ill., March 5—(AP)—Eight hundred eleven Illinois high school basketball teams toed the starting line tonight ready to begin the two week's grind necessary to choose one of them champion here March 26.

Monday the lid will be off in sixty-one districts throughout the state and the wild scramble replete with upsets will begin.

The basketball map of the state represents an unusual picture. In Central Illinois, for example, where there are plenty of conferences, three title holders of 1931 again have the crown. Monticello in the Okaw valley, Carlinville in the South Central and Moweaqua in the Meridian are champions. Again, Streator holds the crown in the Big Twelve which for two years has been contributing the state champion. Peoria Manuel missed retaining a share of the title for which it tied Springfield last year by only a game, finishing second.

Strong teams of a year ago seemed to carry over their strength. Only Springfield is missing from the list of first four place winners in the Big Twelve. The defending state champions of 1931, Decatur, were in fourth place, but they were in third last year.

In Northern Illinois are such favorites as Morton of Cicero and Waukegan. These teams meet in the sectional at Joliet where they probably will be forced to battle such opponents as Joliet, Watterman, Sycamore, Belvidere, or Rockford and Elgin.

Farther south sport followers are singing the praises of Morris, a little team coached by J. S. Crabtree, University of Illinois athlete. Morris will be in the Pontiac district and if successful will proceed to Danville. Morris was in the semi-finals at Peoria the last two years.

Waterman, coached by Ernest Evland, of Bradley Tech, has an excellent chance to come through the Joliet sectional, provided of course it can pass Sycamore and DeKalb in the district. Last year Waterman won district honors and to date this year its only losses have been at the hands of Belvidere in the DeKalb holiday tournament and to Mooseheart, which is not a member of the state association.

Sycamore has had only fair success this year. Jesse Shrodt, Illinois graduate, has a team that has won 16 out of 17 games, losing to Waterman 14 to 11. Sycamore has just won the Little Seven conference title for the third time in five years and is pointing to the DeKalb tourney with hopes of victory.

Belvidere, playing at Rockford in the district, will be a bulwark of resistance. Art Patrick, its coach, piloted the team through the DeKalb holiday tourney and to the North Central conference championship, and is now predicting success at Rockford. Belvidere lost to Rockford two weeks ago, which makes this district meet all the more interesting.

Rockford, however, dropped its first 12 games this season before stopping the Belvidere outfit which was weakened by the loss of Cunningham and Larson, two valuable men. Rockford is gradually improving, however, and may be able to turn back its opponents again.

Woodstock will be a threat in the Elgin district where Elgin and Dundee are the foremost threats. Woodstock has 17 victories in a score of games.

Joliet and Elgin have been the best in the Big Six. Douglas "Gaga" Mills, Joliet Coach, feels his team can walk right through the district and sectional over the heads of DeKalb, Sycamore, Waterman, Belvidere, Waukegan and all, but Cliff Adams thinks his Elgin team can stop Joliet.

Polo is a favorite at Mount Morris sectional while Rock Falls has been picked to beat Dixon, Sterling and Prophetstown in the Sterling district.

To the Kidnapers of Baby Lindy

Mrs. Lindbergh and I desire to make a personal contact with the kidnapers of our child.

Our only interest is in his immediate and safe return and we feel certain that the kidnapers will realize that this interest is strong enough to justify them in having complete confidence and trust in any promises that we may make in connection with his return.

We urge those who have the child to select any representative that they desire to meet a representative of ours who will be suitable to them at any time and at any place that they may designate.

If this is accepted, we promise that we will keep whatever arrangements that may be made by their representative and ours strictly confidential, and we further pledge ourselves that we will not try to injure in any way those connected with the return of the child.

PURDUE QUINTET HAS CHANGE FOR CROWN THIS EVE

A Victory Over Wildcats Will Insure Boiler-makers The Title

Chicago, March 5—(AP)—Purdue's Boiler-makers, who last fall stole an undisputed Big Ten football title from Northwestern come back tonight to try to do the Wildcats out of the 1932 basketball championship. A triumph for Purdue tonight will just about assure the golden-clad band from LaPayette, Ind. of the championship, while Northwestern must win to earn a slice of the title. Northwestern goes into its critical test tonight with nine triumphs and two defeats—one of the latter administered by the Boiler-makers two weeks ago. It will be the Wildcats final game of the season.

Purdue, leading the league with nine victories and one defeat, will play one more game after tonight—against Chicago, and the Maroons are not expected to come close to upsetting the Boiler-makers. So, if Purdue wins tonight, the title is virtually certain to go back to LaPayette after a year's absence. The Boiler-makers walloped Northwestern 48 to 33, in their first meeting, but may expect a rip-roaring battle from a desperate crew of Wildcats tonight.

Johnny Wooden, one of the most polished basketball players developed in the Big Ten in years, will lead the Purdue offense, with Ray Eddy and Jack Keller as his scoring aids. Joe Beitz, high scorer of the conference last year, is the Northwestern punch, with Elmer Johnson, Saul Farber, Capt. Bob McCarnes and Buss Smith as the other starters.

Minnesota will meet Iowa at Iowa City and must win to retain its chance of tying Northwestern for second position. The game will be Iowa's final. Indiana, which still has a chance of breaking even on its conference season, will tackle Wisconsin at Madison, after which each will have one game left.

In the other game Illinois will meet Chicago at Chicago, in an effort to repeat an earlier victory, and remain in the first division. The season will close Monday night with

Kidnap Victim's Nurse

Miss Betty Gow, nurse of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., who was one of the last to see the baby before his kidnapping. She put him to bed in the nursery of the Lindbergh home at Hopewell, N. J., at 7:30 P. M. March 1. At 10:00 P. M. she discovered that the baby was gone.

West Brooklyn News

BY HENRY GEHANT

West Brooklyn — Our village was among those surrounding us that were isolated from the rest of the world. We were without electric lights, power or telephone service due to the sleet storm. The water at the village pumping station was held in check, in the event of fire, until the power was turned on again. Ice boxes had to be resorted to by the stores to keep their meat and kerosene lamps were in vogue. However the light and phone companies are pushing the work and service will be resumed soon. Every telephone pole between here and Yocum's corner was down.

State Representative Henry C. Allen of Lyndon was here on Tuesday calling on the voters.

Clarence Smith damaged his truck slightly on Tuesday night when the ice on the windshield hid his view and both he and the other driver were unable to see each other. Luckily they were driving very cautiously, otherwise serious damage might have resulted.

Tony Halbmaier moved to the Boucom farm on Monday. Paul Halbmaier moved on the homestead vacated by Tony and Oswin Halbmaier moved into Paul's home here.

John Derr moved back to their farm. Wilbur Rhoads moved to the George Hahn farm and George Hahn moved to the Joe Kuehna farm, while Amel Vincent moved to the Schmitt farm and John Mahaffey, who occupied the Schmitt farm moved to the Congey farm which was vacated by Gus Haas.

Henry Kirchstaetter was a business caller here from Troy Grove on Saturday.

The LaSalle paper gave our town bowling team quite a send-off in one of last week's issues. It was:

"West Brooklyn suffered its first home floor defeat Tuesday evening when the Starved Rock Oilers took them into camp in a match game. Fifteen times various La Salle teams had motored up to the little village and fifteen times they journeyed home in defeat. The margin in the Oilers' game was but 73 pins."

The results of the first weeks bowling tournament between the married men and the single men was as follows:

BY JOAN CLAYTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beautiful ELLEN ROSSITER, employed at Barclay's Department Store, works nights as a dance hall hostess. She lives with her mother, MOLLY ROSSITER, her elder sister, MYRA, and her brother, MIKE.

STEVEN BARCLAY, 57 and owner of Barclay's, is in love with Ellen. Twice she refuses to marry him. Ellen loves LARRY HARROWGATE, an artist. Several papers announce Larry's engagement to ELIZABETH BOWES, a debutante. For a long time Ellen hopes that Larry returns her love but when Elizabeth returns from Europe he sends a note telling Ellen he cannot see her for some time.

Heart-broken, Ellen tries to forget. Gradually she comes to think less of Larry and more of Steven Barclay. Then her brother is dangerously injured in a traffic accident. Barclay provides money for the boy's care. One evening he tells Ellen he has sent for a physician. To perform an operation on Mike's legs. Ellen Barclay she wants to marry him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

STEVEN fell back a step in surprise. "Do you mean this? Are you serious?"

Ellen's eyes answered him. She paused to brush back from her forehead a lock of curling hair. "I would be safe if I married you," she went on. "I would have peace. Just now I very much want peace and safety."

"I've never heard that marriage was particularly safe," he told her.

Ellen pondered. "But I—" she had begun when he interrupted.

"Ellen, my dear, I'm afraid you have conceived some mad idea of marrying me to show your gratitude. I can't let you do that."

"It's not that at all," Ellen put in, her cheeks flushing.

"But you don't love me," she said wearily, not denying his statement. "I know that I think you are the kindest man in the world. I know that I trust and admire you. Isn't that enough?"

"At your age I'm inclined to think not."

"Help me, help me, Steven!" the girl whispered.

"So there is—was—someone else?"

He was watching and saw the gallant smile that did not reach her eyes. She did not answer the question but put another instead.

"Would you marry me, Steven, knowing that I once thought I loved someone else very much even though I knew that love wouldn't work out, could never work out?"

He laughed mirthlessly. "I'm afraid I would. I'd think, you see, that I loved you so much that in time you would come to love me, too."

Still he made no move toward her. There was no exultation in his face. He only stood looking down on her.

"I don't understand," she began ruefully. "Just the other day—"

He turned to walk the scant length of the kitchen, past the piled up sink with its unwashed dishes, past the stove and porcelain table to stare through the open window into the hot night. Wheeling suddenly he came back to her and forced himself to say the words so hard to speak.

"Just the other day you did not feel under obligations to me. Now I'm afraid you do."

"There's no use pretending I'm not grateful to you," Ellen admitted. "No use pretending I wouldn't like to do everything I can to make you as happy as you've made me. But that isn't a fault, is it?"

THE light from the single unshaded bulb aureoled her tawny hair and glided her bare arms, revealed by the thin blue frock. She stood there so fresh and confident, so young and desirable, that Barclay felt his resolution weaken.

"But how about—how about the other man?" he asked, clearing his throat.

"I hope you'll understand, Steven, when I tell you that he brought me nothing but misery and grief and heartache. I thought I'd go mad with restlessness and pain when I knew him. It was that kind of love, Steven. The love it's best to forget."

She paused, then added, "But that's all done now. I can even say I'm glad it's done."

Ellen believed the words as she spoke them. Steven believed her because he wanted to but there was no real confidence in his heart.

As Ellen raised her fresh young lips to his first kiss she determined that he should be happy. It was not the ecstatic kiss she had dreamed of but she felt at peace. She thought it was peace that she wanted.

Hand in hand like children they went into the living room to announce their engagement.

Myra and Bert were pleased, not surprised. Myra kissed them both in a quaint and dignified way. Bert shyly shook hands with the happy couple, graying man who was to be his brother-in-law. Afterwards they washed the dishes, all of them, and were very gay. Myra and Bert joked and teased until Ellen blushed as brightly as Steven. But she did not mind the teasing.

Then the girls put on hats to go to the hospital. Alone together for a moment, Myra gave Ellen an ecstatic hug and whispered the wish that she would always be happy. The four of them went down the stairs. Mrs. Barclay was at her usual post and waved a greeting. On sudden impulse Ellen stopped to announce the news and to introduce Steven as her fiancé. She knew from Steven's boyish laugh that he was pleased.

"When's it to be?" demanded Mrs. Barclay.

Ellen hesitated. There had been no talk of dates.

"Probably not for some time," Steven answered for her. "I'm compelled to sail for Europe Saturday and the wedding will take place after my return."

Mrs. Barclay's smiling, significant eyes followed them until they were lost to sight by the stairway turn. Myra and Bert were already outside. It was as they were going down the last flight of stairs that Ellen spoke.

"Would you like to make it sooner, Steven?" she asked. "Soon enough so that if Mike's well enough I can go to Europe with you?"

"Ellen!"

HE caught her in his arms so roughly that for a moment she was frightened. His hoarse, low voice was murmuring in her ear. So she did love him! She did want to make it soon! Something in Ellen's heart turned over with shame and dismay. She understood all at once, as she trembled in his arms, that the reason she had wanted to make it soon was to protect herself from another meeting with Larry Harrowgate.

Her heart contracted with reluctance and an odd pain. Steven should never guess why she wanted her promise to be irrevocable. She stroked his hair back from his forehead and assured him that she did love him. There are all kinds of love in this world, Ellen thought. Steven should never suspect that she had given away for good and all the kind of love he wanted. So little did the young and virginal Ellen know of the human heart.

They walked out to the car.

"There's just one thing I want to ask of you," Steven said to Ellen, when he had brought the two girls back from the hospital. They were standing at the curb outside the house. Ellen raised startled eyes.

"It's only that you quit that dancing job at once," he went on. "Can you telephone them tonight?"

Ellen smiled at his eagerness but found it comforting and sweet.

"I'll call them tonight," she promised.

Ellen linked arms with her sister and entered the house, conscious that Steven's eyes were following, conscious too that heads were popping out of apartments all over the neighborhood. Every one seemed to know that something unusual was happening at the Rossiters.

"Wasn't mother pleased?" Myra observed as they climbed the stairs.

"It's only that you quit that dancing job at once," he went on. "Can you telephone them tonight?"

Ellen smiled at his eagerness but found it comforting and sweet.

"I'll call them tonight," she promised

Sports Parade

By HENRY McLEMORE (United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, March 5.—(UP)—It is against the law in New York state to walk a tight rope, to take a cow out for a walk after night-fall unless he cow be equipped with a tail light; to buy land from the Indians; or to park a barrel of sorghum out in front of your green grocery.

All ridiculous laws, you say. Uh huh, but not one whit more ridiculous than the proposed New York state motorboat law recently introduced by one Senator Warren T. Thayer. It is to be hoped the committee of Commerce and Navigation chucks it out the window and orders a fresh supply of ginger ale. Or one of the many waters that mixes well with ice.

Senator Thayer's proposed act has more jokes to the square page than Joe Miller's little pamphlet. Not the least funny of its proposals is that all money paid into the state treasury by motorboaters via fees, examinations, etc., shall be turned over for the maintenance and repair of improved roads in the state.

This, it seems to us, is every bit as absurd as taking up a collection at a Communists' meeting to buy cuff links for John D. Rockefeller, or asking the Chinese to chip in for the fun to help wounded Japanese machine gun choppers.

But that is by no means the only laugh. The Senator would bar children under 18 from diving, and boat owners would be subjected to an examination similar to the one given automobile drivers. It is a safe bet that these examinations would be conducted by men who wouldn't know a rudder from a fresh southwest breeze.

In outlining his idea of registration fees the Senator gets all tangled up. Under his system of taxation the owner of a 50-foot cruiser with a heavy-duty motor of 24 horsepower would be assessed but $5, the same amount of tribute demanded from the owner of a 17-foot, fast-stepping runabout propelled by a 50-horsepower motor, and less than some outboard sputter-sputter owners would pay. Senator, you stay in after school!

Senator Thayer would require a boat, big or small, to carry an anchor of sufficient weight and strength to hold the boat fast in any sort of weather. In other words, I've got to equip my six-foot row-boat with a anchor big enough to hold her steady in the face of a full grown hurricane. Which means I will sink as soon as I put the anchor on board.

Senator, you've lost a constituent.
